

Built Environments in the New Forest: Past, Present and Future

A New Forest Knowledge Conference

Tickets £20

Today's New Forest is a largely woodland and heathland environment, yet integral to its special qualities and unique sense of place are its many buildings and structures. Built environments are both shaped by and shape the people who inhabit them, work in them, admire them and ignore them. They are at the heart of some of the current opportunities and challenges we face in creating a sustainable future for the New Forest. Inspired by the revised Pevsner architecture guide to southern Hampshire, this conference will consider the built environment of the New Forest.
